- 3. In Tay Ninh Province, the materiel is stored in a depot at Ba Den (106-11; 11-22), from where it is shipped to the various zones of South Vietnam.

 A large part of the materiel is subsequently stored at Hong Ngu (105-20; 10-48), Go Bac Chien (105-54; 10-46), and at various places in the Plaine des Jones.
- 4. The supply route from North Vietnam was inaugurated in about June 1951 in order that South Vietnam might receive its share of the arms received from Communist China. The DRV developed a methodical system of transport by region, each region being responsible for the transport of materiel to the border of the next region, where a group from that region assumed responsibility.
